

Government Contracts Associate – Washington, DC

Description

The Government Contracts Practice Group in Bradley's Washington D.C. office is seeking to add an associate with three to six years of experience in federal government contracting law. Substantive bid protest and contract claim experience in private practice is highly desired. The firm will consider attorneys with federal government employment experience as well. The position involves government contracts litigation and counseling matters primarily, but the candidate should also be willing to assist in other areas as needed.
