Government Contracts Attorney Advisor – GS-15, U.S. Department of Health & Human Services, Office of the General Counsel

Description

This is an opening for Procurement Attorney-Advisor positions for the PFIL Branch in the General Law Division. PFIL is seeking attorneys with experience in federal procurement and contract law. The incumbents will advise contracting officials on all aspects of the source selection process and contract administration, including the application of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), and other federal statutes and regulations regarding federal contracting. The incumbent will litigate bid protests before the Government Accountability Office (GAO) as well as Contract Disputes Act claims before the Civilian Board of Contract Appeals and will assist DOJ with Court of Federal Claims cases. Other duties will include advising agency officials on other general and administrative law topics. Familiarity with other general law areas (e.g., federal appropriations law and federal information law) is desirable.

We are seeking to fill the positions at the GS-15 level ($169,279 – $197,200) depending on experience and qualifications. The positions will be located in Washington, D.C., or Baltimore, MD, depending on section assignment. Reimbursement for relocation expenses is not available.

Preferred Qualifications: Applicants should have experience in government procurement law, including related litigation, contract awards, and contract administration.
